Passage of the Democratic Tariff Reform Measure.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—After 40 years of wandering in the wilderness Moses could not enter the promised land, but from the heights of Pisgah his eyes had to be gladdened with a sight which he had told so manfully.

The Moses of the tariff reformers in Congress, who had had courage enough to believe that there was something for the people better than a legalized system of robbery known as protection, ex-Chairman of Ways and Means, and now, as the tariff reformer had to view the promised land from afar. He could not today record his vote for the bill that represented the principles which he had championed so earnestly, but he was the least interested in watching the proceedings. With roll call and a pencil he kept the vote, and his manner showed how rejoiced he was at knowing that the Democratic House had the passage of the bill, and that the tariff reformers were on record in favor of relieving the burdens of the people.

The House met at 11 o'clock as usual. Before the roll call, men and women in wending in the street cars and on foot were carrying their way to the great pillar of marble on the hill, in which the most notable debate of the century was about to close. It was a lovely day, and the sun was shining brightly in the sky, and the air was fresh and cool, and the people were in good humor, and the House was in good luck, and the tariff reformers were on record in favor of relieving the burdens of the people.

Solid Mass of Humanity.
Many there were so far back that they thought that they could hear nothing, but they stayed on, and when the storm of applause from the inside grew so loud that its echo could be heard outside they asked many more fortunate neighbors what had been said or done.

One thing this debate has proved, if nothing else, it has shown the interest the country at large has in the tariff. The farmers and mechanics, as well as the business men and experts, have studied the subject with a keen interest, and the people are in good luck, and the tariff reformers are on record in favor of relieving the burdens of the people.

voice broke now and then and he had to stop and drink from the cup of beef tea that was on the desk before him. Then he plunged in with greater vigor than ever, plugging the right arm of his coat with his hand, and revealing a couple of inches of the white cuff.

Calvin Brice, the New Democratic Chairman.

The Situation in Indiana, as Seen by Hon. C. L. Jewett.

Notes and Incidents of the Pending Campaign.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Calvin S. Brice, who was elected chairman of the Democratic national committee, is a man whose name is synonymous with success.

Mr. Brice was born in Connecticut, Oct. 10, 1845, hence is now completing his thirty-third year. The common school of his native village, and later the public school at Lima, O., absorbed his attention until he was 15 years of age, when he entered the preparatory department of the Miami University at Oxford. A year later he began the usual college course. Before the outbreak of the civil war, in April, 1861, he enlisted and fought for a year with the Union army in Virginia. The next year he spent in college, from which he graduated in June, 1863.

gence and very strong convictions. They have a deep-seated personal dislike for Harrison, and I have been unable to discover a single one of the States who will vote for him.

The Republican machine has long been in the hands of the New-Harrison faction. This faction fairly runs Harrison down the throat of the State, and the only way to proceed upon the theory that it is better to have Harrison and defeat than any other Republican and victory.

As a proof of this, it is a fact that a Republican could not have been elected to the State Senate, or to the House of Representatives, or to the Legislature, if the managers consented to the election of any one but Harrison, but to this they preferred and got a Democrat.

It was Chicago, when by the selection of Gresham, a much stronger ticket could have been made and, yet, entirely against the interests of the State, the Republican machine would have carried the State, we could not have elected a Democrat to the State.

When he was nominated a great shout went up from the Republican ranks, and it did not come from the throats of the voting population. It emanated from the ranks of the Republican party, who were the only ones who were interested in the election of a Democrat to the State.

nothing in direct explanation of his Chinese record, but he will undoubtedly have quite a good deal to say on the subject of immigration, and in that connection will urge that restriction should be placed on immigration, and that the Chinese should assimilate with our own people. This, of course, is anti-Chinese.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Mandeville's Death Charged to Brutal Treatment.

Mr. Parnell and the Commission on the Times Charges.

Notes of Interest from All Parts of the Old World.

A London cable to the New York Telegram says: The Nationalists are thought to have secured the nomination of John Mandeville in the case of John Mandeville, whose private notes and sufferings while in Tullamore jail no longer doubts caused his demise.

The story of his incarceration, as told by his widow and others at the inquest, is pathetic in the extreme, and if anything is calculated to make Mr. Balfour an object of greater hatred in Ireland, this painful narrative is destined to do it.

The suicide of Dr. Ridley lends additional strength to the opinion that Mr. Mandeville was brutally treated at Tullamore, and this by the authority of the chief secretary.

Mr. O'Brien, Mr. Charles's fellow-prisoner, said today that the revelations of this piece of cruelty would be worth thousands of votes in England. The bulk of the Tories accepted coercion, he said, without being aware of the great wrong practically unlimited force conferred upon one man, who, if so disposed, could go to any length to make life a burden to Irishmen, and, in fact, cause their death, as in the case of Mr. Mandeville.

Mr. O'Brien, in speaking of the character of the deceased, said that he was so true to the cause of Ireland that he would have died gladly if he knew that in giving up his life he would have secured the victory of the Nationalist cause, his death is now likely to do so. Mr. O'Brien felt convinced that English voters would soon see for themselves what coercion was doing for the sister Isle, and a great wave of sympathy would soon mount up and sweep the present government from power.

No cause which enlisted martyrs among his believers could fail in the end, and he was sure that this was the case.

Mandeville's Sufferings.
The Mandeville inquest was resumed Saturday. A great sensation was caused by the evidence of James Connelley, who was formerly a warden in Tullamore jail. Goulding deposed that on the evening of Nov. 22, the governor of the jail said to him: "I wish to see you."

FINISHED AT LAST.

Vote on the Tariff Bill Results in Victory.

Mills' Speech Summing up the Features of the Great Debate.

Other Happenings in Congress During the Past Week.

[Week Ending July 20.]

MONDAY.—Mr. Hoar, from the committee on the library, reported back the Senate bill appropriating $25,000 for the purpose of erecting a monument to General George Rogers Clark in the city of Louisville, Ky. Instead of Washington, D. C., in recognition of his eminent services to his country in the occupation and conquest of the Northwestern Territory during the revolutionary war, Mr. Hoar proposed that the monument be erected in the city of Louisville, Ky., in recognition of his eminent services to his country in the occupation and conquest of the Northwestern Territory during the revolutionary war.

Mr. Chandler followed in opposition to the treaty. He obtained the floor, and the treaty went over till tomorrow. Two votes of pension bills were presented and referred to the committee on pensions. The Senate bill for the adjustment of accounts of laborers and mechanics arising under the eight-hour law was then taken up and advocated by Mr. Blair. The close of the session was adjourned to executive business and later adjourned.

The Wool Schedule Passes. The House went into committee of the whole on the tariff bill, the woolen schedule being pending.

E. B. Taylor of Ohio agreed that the passage of the bill would reduce the price of wool in this country after it had been in operation sufficiently long to decide the home market. Mr. Allen of Massachusetts sent to the clerk's desk and had a letter read from Mr. Brewster, president of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, stating that the permanent success of the wool manufacturing industry, says Mr. Brewster, is dependent on the growth in this country of principal raw material. Mr. Jackson of Massachusetts declared that the manufacturers of Philadelphia were uncompromisingly opposed to free wool.

Mr. Milles of Ohio moved that the bill be passed. The House then passed the bill by a vote of 158 yeas to 100 nays. The bill was then passed by a vote of 158 yeas to 100 nays. The bill was then passed by a vote of 158 yeas to 100 nays.
